Governor Mann spent yesterday in Washington consulting with those in authority over the plan there, and will soon make a public statement regarding soon make a public statement regarding it, explaining it in detail.

The principal object seems to be to secure local interest. To this end associations of farmers and business men must be formed in each county desiring to share in the distribution of money. These organizations will contribute what they see fit to demonstration work, to add to the salary of the demonstration agent in those of the demonstration agent in those counties where one now exists, or to counties where one now exists, or to counties where one now exists, or to create such an office where there is none at present because of failure by the supervisors to look with kindness on the plan which has been carnied on for the past two years. With more money, the best men could be secured, at is argued.
